Earthjustice’s Oceans Program has used the power of law for fifteen years to end overfishing and protect ocean ecosystems, to safeguard iconic marine wildlife, and to build resilience to the impacts of climate change in marine habitats. The Oceans Program is staffed by eight attorneys and a paralegal, working from two Earthjustice offices. We partner with conservation groups, coastal communities, and international organizations to play a key role in enforcing domestic laws and engaging in intergovernmental processes in order to compel better stewardship of the oceans.

Responsibilities:

- Work with attorneys in the Oceans Program investigating matters related to federal litigation and domestic and international marine issues.
- Assist in the development of case strategy and legal theories.
- Under the supervision of an attorney, perform legal and factual research and prepare memoranda.

Qualifications:

- Currently enrolled in law school.
- Must be eligible to receive academic credit or fulfill a graduation requirement through this externship.
- Commitment of at least 16 hours a week.
- Strong writing, research, analytical and organizational skills.
- Familiarity with legal research tools, including Westlaw.
- Ability to work independently and proactively.

Compensation:

Legal externs are unpaid and must receive academic credit or fulfill a graduation requirement for their work with Earthjustice.

To Apply:

Interested candidates should submit the following materials:

- Cover letter that explains:
• Your interest in working with the Earthjustice Oceans Program,
• Whether you are seeking a full- or a part-time position,
• The number of hours, or a reasonable estimate, you are available to work per week,
• Whether you prefer to work 100% remotely or would be open to coming into our Seattle or San Francisco offices once we reopen,
• Confirmation that you can earn academic credit from your law school or that you will be fulfilling a graduation requirement, and
• An indication of any applicable deadlines or requirements that are relevant to your submission or ability to accept an offer.

- Resume
- Unofficial law school transcript
- Writing sample, preferably a legal memorandum less than ten pages that primarily reflects your work
- List of references, including at least one law professor or legal employer
- Incomplete applications will not be considered.

Applications are due by October 17, 2021. Applications will not be accepted after the deadline.

Please note that this job posting for a legal externship does NOT cover summer positions; there is a separate application process for applicants interested in summer clerkships with Earthjustice.
