Who We Are

The National Native American Law Students Association was founded in 1970 to support law students who are interested in the study of Federal Indian Law, Tribal Law, and traditional forms of governance. Our organization is led by a board of Indigenous law students from across the country and our membership consists of local NALSA chapters, individual Native law students, Native attorneys, and allies.

What We Do

Increase Native Americans in the Legal Field

We strive to increase the Native American law student population and draw attention to legal issues that affect Native communities through petitions, panels, social media campaigns and more.

Networking and Educational Advancement

We promote unity and cooperation among law students by bringing our community together for events such as our annual conference and our nationally renowned moot court competition.

Professional Development

We assist students in their professional growth by providing them the opportunity to have their research published through our annual writing competitions. We connect students with potential employers through our resume books.

Support NALSA Chapters Across the Country

We support local NALSA chapters by fundraising year-round so that we can provide funding for NALSA chapters through grants.

ANNUAL CONFERENCE

The Annual Conference will take place in conjunction with the Federal Bar Association's Indian Law Conference on April 7 and 8th 2022 at the Sandia Resort & Casino located in Albuquerque, New Mexico.

The Annual Conference is a time for our board and membership to unite, celebrate one another, network with professionals, and form lasting bonds of friendship with one another.

Awards Reception

At the Annual Conference, we honor students and alumni that made a big impact in their communities throughout the year through an awards reception.

Elections

Elections for the incoming NNALSA Board take place at the Annual Conference each year. Elections are followed by transition meetings between the outgoing and incoming board members.

Networking

Our Annual Conference provides important networking opportunities for Native law students. NNALSA members have the opportunity to participate in various social events with each other as well as events with alumni.

How You Can Help

The Annual Conference is vital to the success of our organization. We rely on donations and sponsorships for everything we do.

As a 501(c)3 non-profit organization, we ask for your support and invite you to be part of NNALSA.
