

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT FOR THE DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA

DANTE DESIDERIO,
Plaintiff,

v.

NATIONAL CONGRESS OF AMERICAN
INDIANS, et al.,
Defendants.

Civil Action No. 22-2664 (CKK)

ORDER
(September 6, 2022)

This matter comes before the Court upon its initial review of Defendant National Congress of American Indians' ("National Congress") [1] Notice of Removal. Because it appears that National Congress is a citizen of the District of Columbia, the Court shall order Defendant to SHOW CAUSE why this matter should not be remanded back to the Superior Court of the District of Columbia.

A defendant may remove a case to federal court if the federal court has jurisdiction over the matter. 28 U.S.C. § 1441(a). Removal is effective when the defendant files a notice of removal in federal court with "a short and plain statement of the grounds for removal, together with a copy of all process, pleadings, and orders" from state court. 28 U.S.C. § 1446(a). "If at any time before final judgment it appears that the district court lacks subject matter jurisdiction, the case shall be remanded." Id. § 1447(c). In summary terms, the removal statute provides for two types of subject matter jurisdiction: federal question jurisdiction for matters arising under federal law, see 28 U.S.C. § 1331, and diversity jurisdiction for matters arising under state law where the amount in controversy is greater than $75,000 and the parties are citizens of different states, see 28 U.S.C. § 1332. For removal on diversity jurisdiction, the defendant cannot be a citizen of the forum state. Id. § 1441(b)(2).

Here, the operative complaint alleges that National Congress is a citizen of the District of Columbia. ECF No. 1-1 at 30. National Congress does not appear to contest that allegation in its pending Opposed Motion to Dismiss or, Alternatively, to Compel Arbitration, filed before removal. See ECF No. 1-1 at 93.

As such, it appears that the Court lacks removal jurisdiction over this matter. Rather than remanding the case sua sponte, however, the Court shall afford National Congress an opportunity to demonstrate jurisdiction.
