

The Tribal Law Journal at the University of New Mexico School of Law Presents

200 YEARS SINCE JOHNSON V. M'INTOSH:

THE CASE'S IMPACT ON NATIVE COMMUNITIES AND TRIBAL GOVERNMENTS

Join us for a virtual symposium that will consider Indigenous perspectives on this foundational case and will include discussions of the Doctrine of Discovery and the impact on contemporary issues facing Native communities. Articles produced for this symposium will be published in the upcoming issue of the Tribal Law Journal.

Speakers: Matthew Fletcher, Kekek Stark, Richard Collins, and Robert Miller

NOVEMBER 9 | 10AM TO 2PM MST

NM MCLE HAS APPROVED

3 GENERAL CLE CREDITS

For more Information and to access the symposium virtually, visit:

<https://lawschool.unm.edu/tlj/>

